

How to complete the "Document Details" and "Amendment History" sections of a document

To assist the readers of a document know its current status (final or draft / approved or awaiting approval) the following sections should be added to any larger document you create.

- Document Details
- Amendment History

These sections are already included in the Unitec templates to be used for the writing of Unitec Statutes, Policies, Procedures and Guidelines.

The information below shows you what these sections should look like and what information you should include in these sections.

DOCUMENT DETAILS

Note: Include all or some of the information shown in the table below, dependant on the type of document.

All documents at a minimum should include Version, Issue Date and Document Owner (Author). This minimum detail ensures that the reader can identify if the document is in draft or final status; how old the document is and therefore the relevance of the content today; who owns the document and therefore would be the best person to go to if the reader has any questions about its content.

Formal documents such as policies and procedures and other documents that require ongoing update/review should also include the other elements shown below.
