

Te whaitake o te Taura Whakahere ki ngā Kaimahi tāpiri katoa | What the Operating Model means for all allied staff

Nau mai | Welcome

We've been given a once in a lifetime opportunity to reimagine and build a world-class vocational and on-the-job learning system for Aotearoa New Zealand that has ākonga, learners, at the centre.

'Whakairohia he toki, tāraia te anamata' which literally means 'Fashion an adze, carve out the future'. This purposefully authored Te Pūkenga whakatauākī (proverb) captures the essence of our collective Te Pūkenga vision.

Furthermore, our Te Pūkenga Whakatauākī inspires us to come together and work as one for the benefit of our ākonga. This includes our Te Tiriti o Waitangi partners, our network staff across the country, our employers and our community.

When we come together, we can give our learners the best possible head-start in gaining satisfying work now and into the future.

Our proposed Operating Model

The first stage is to create an Operating Model for Te Pūkenga.

This is the framework that describes how Te Pūkenga will operate in the future.

The proposed Operating Model describes the future experience that learners, employers, staff and iwi, hapū and Māori will have and how we, as a network, will advance equity and address inequity, especially for Māori, Pacific, and disabled learners.

We want to gather your whakaaro (feedback) about our proposed model.

The model does not confirm our new organisational design and structure, how we govern ourselves or what our regions are.

We'll come to you again both later this year and next year and ask for your whakaaro as we progress our design mahi and the structure of Te Pūkenga together with you.

Hei whakamārama Description of our whakatauākī

The most well used and highly prized tool of the pre-European Māori world was the toki or the adze. This implement was used to fashion waka, build houses, fell trees and even create other tools. So prized was the toki that there are many Māori proverbs that speak of its application and even people who were seen as proficient in various activities were called 'toki.'

The notion of toki aligns with the name Te Pūkenga which also means to be proficient or skilled in particular roles. By including the word whakairohia in the first part of the sentence, this phrase is encouraging people to upskill themselves, or equip themselves with the relevant tool. The second part of the phrase is about the future. The word tāraia means to fashion, shape or sculpt and anamata is the future. Therefore the phrase as a whole is about encouraging people to prepare themselves with a skillset that will help us all to shape the future.

Tiro wawe: He aha tōna whaitake ki a koe?

At a glance: What does this mean for you?

- Some duplicated activities will be brought together into a single hub network, giving you the space to focus on your core role
- You'll have time and space to grow your cultural capability and improve your confidence in new and emerging technologies
- You'll work with people across the motu, learning and sharing knowledge and resources
- Delivery will be tailored to meet the needs of our learners and reflect local identity and community need.

The proposed Operating Model

Our Operating Model is based around describing the future functions of our network and how they are grouped to transform the way vocational education is delivered. Each function and how they work together will be a critical part of our network.

Our weaved model groups functions into three areas:

1. Strategic functions interact with and support other parts of the network and system to form strategic insights and embed the network's strategic direction. Strategic functions identify opportunities for innovation, measures the impacts of initiatives and interventions, and the network's performance.
2. Enabling functions sustain the other functions and the information flows between them to enable quality, certainty, and consistency across the network. Bringing together these core enabling functions also drives efficiencies and reduced duplication within the network.
3. Teaching, learning, support and navigation functions for successful learner and employer journeys – these are functions that determine how we interact directly with learners, their whānau, and employers to deliver high quality education and effective holistic wellbeing support and empowerment.

In addition, ako networks will be created. Ako networks are formal networks of teams who come together to use their knowledge, skills and competencies to support delivery of vocational and on-the-job learning, including degree and postgraduate programmes.

They will support the development of fully integrated learning options across all modes of delivery that may vary from learner to learner or employer to employer.

Through sharing ako (teaching and learning) we will empower staff to drive excellence in moderation, and quality assurance, completing formal capability development together, and enhancing and maintaining curriculum and resources. These groups will include members from a range of other organisations – such as Workforce Development Councils (WDCs), Centres of Vocational Excellence, industry, employers and Māori partners – that come together for certain activities to ensure Te Pūkenga stays connected and relevant to the network's needs.

Ōna taipitopito: He aha tōna whaitake ki a koe?

In detail: What does this mean for you?

Learning and development for staff

Most staff share a genuine desire to be culturally competent to respond to the holistic needs of learners, but feel more support is required to enable them to do so. You told us there is a lack of support to upskill in emerging technologies that improve the quality and accessibility of education.

The Operating Model will support all staff to learn and grow. This includes giving you the time, space and resources to grow cultural awareness, technical capability and ability to be responsive to the needs of Māori, Pacific, and disabled learners.

This means strengthening how our staff give effect to Te Tiriti o Waitangi, meet the equity rights and needs of underserved peoples and communities, enhance capability to support and deliver on Māori, Pacific, and disabled community aspirations, and enable staff to become disability confident.

Ako networks will create opportunities for you to share learnings, innovate, and strengthen the network of delivery. Some ako networks will align to disciplines or industry to support learning while others might cover topics such as learner support and engagement, data and insights or emerging technologies.

Dedicated support will also be provided across all parts of our organisation, including Enabling and Strategic functions, to improve your confidence in using new and emerging technologies.

Staff voice

We want to make sure that your voice informs all that we do. By working together, we can better understand and design solutions that meet your needs.

This model will bring together other functions that help us listen to the different voices across the organisation. We will ensure that they are fed into all that we do – for example strategy and planning, and policy development. Your voice will be heard at all levels of the organisation – governance, management and operational.

Growing a representative workforce is a crucial part of advancing equity and inclusion and addressing inequity across the network. This will enable us to be responsive to the needs of diverse learners, whānau, industries, employers, and communities.

Bringing our people together

A key piece of this change will be bringing our people together to deliver the vision set out in our Charter. Enabling and Strategic functions will play a key role in bringing our people together. The collective focus on understanding the way we currently do things and working together to set the future way we do things will require working together across the motu.

Ako networks will also play a significant role in bringing people together. By providing the opportunity to share knowledge and learn from others, we can not only improve what and how we deliver, but also improve how we work together.

Our Collective Impact initiatives will also bring together staff from different disciplines, employers, learners, communities, iwi, hapū, government agencies and local enterprises to focus on a common goal. These shared goals will be at the heart of what we are trying to achieve for our learners, their whānau, and their communities.

Preserving identity

We know that the needs of each community are unique, and that our teaching and learner support staff must together be able to tailor the way they deliver their mahi to meet local needs. This is an important part of our new Operating Model.

This model will ensure that delivery of teaching and learning and support can be integrated and tailored regionally. This will enable you to take the best of our nationwide network (for example through ako networks and ako support networks) and tailor this to ensure that it will meet the needs of our learners, their whānau, and communities.

Other functions of the organisation will also be regionally tailored – such as the services and events we offer. These will be designed in collaboration with local communities, iwi, hapū and mana whenua, to ensure they reflect local identity and the needs of our communities.

In practice what this could mean

In 2023, ako networks will begin to support staff to strengthen connections across the network, especially in their own area of expertise. The network structure will be known, and staff will increasingly operate in a network environment.

The national staff advisory committee will be chosen by staff for staff. Leadership and capability building programmes support our people with the right skills and attributes required for the future. Collectively, we will measure our performance around learners and whānau, with a focus on learner success.

We want to hear your feedback, comments and ideas. The main questions that we have are below, however, we invite your feedback on anything that's important to you regarding the proposed Operating Model. Share your voice at: yourvoice.tepukenga.ac.nz

Ngā pātai | Questions

Sharing your thoughts on the below questions will help us finalise the Operating Model which will go to the Minister of Education for endorsement in December this year.

Ako networks

Ako networks are formal networks of teams who come together to use their knowledge, skills and competencies to support delivery of vocational and on-the-job learning, including degree and postgraduate programmes.

- Do you have any feedback on the proposed ako networks?
- How do you think they will position Te Pūkenga to better deliver to ākonga and employers?
- What will be the key challenges that we will need to overcome?

Proposed functions

The proposed Operating Model presents the proposed functions of Te Pūkenga and how they are grouped to transform the way vocational education is delivered in Aotearoa New Zealand.

- Do you have any feedback on the proposed functions?

Categorising the functions

In the Operating Model, we have categorised functions in one of two ways to describe if they are a 'single hub network' function or 'distributed delivery' function. Single hub network functions aim to maintain consistency, cost effectiveness and driving quality at scale. Distributed delivery functions will be close to where the service is provided so they can be responsive to learners, their whānau, employers and regional needs.

- Do you have any feedback on the way we have categorised functions as either a single hub network function or distributed delivery function?

Giving effect to Te Tiriti o Waitangi

The proposed Operating Model must reflect Māori-Crown relations in order to give effect to Te Tiriti o Waitangi in governance, management and operations, acknowledge Māori leadership in regional development, and achieve equitable outcomes for ākonga Māori – Māori learners and their whānau, and is fundamental to the way we will all work to achieve equity between peoples in opportunity and outcome.

- Do you think our proposed Operating Model does enough to achieve this?
- Are there other things you think we should be doing? (whether that's as teachers, employers or learners)?

Equity between peoples in opportunity and outcome

The proposed Operating Model must reflect that equity and Inclusion are core principles of our organisation. It must enable us to advance and achieve equity for our learners and their whānau and staff - in both opportunity and outcomes.

- Do you think our proposed Operating Model does enough to achieve this?
- Are there other things you think we should be doing? (whether that's as teachers, employers or learners)?

Responding to ROVE

Our Operating Model outlines what we will do and how we could be organised to deliver on our vision and the objectives of the Reform of Vocational Education (RoVE).

- Is there anything you would change about how the model brings to life the objectives of the RoVE reform?

Regional Collective Impact

The proposed Operating Model sets out the exciting and intentional inclusion of working collaboratively within the regions with other regional and community partners (such as Regional Skills Leadership Groups, Ministry of Social Development, Ministry of Business, Innovation and Employment, kura and schools, community organisations).

- What opportunities do you consider there are for our learners, employers and even your own mahi in building this engagement with key regional partners?
